STATE FOOTBALL TEAMS START PRACTICE

The Coming Week and the First Games Will Be Played September 23.

Only a little over a week remains before the state educational institutions open their doors for the 1916-17 year and with their opening the 1916 football campaign formally opens. As has been noted previously in these columns there will be five teams of college caliber in action through the September-October-November campaign in the West Virginia mountains. These are the West Virginia University, West Virginia Wesleyan College, Bethany College, Marshall College and Davis-Ellkins College. Very recently Morris Harvey College has come into the field and although late to be very successful in securing a good college schedule, it will be a factor among the weaker teams and will add a touch of color to the southern West Virginia gridiron campaign when it stacks up against Marshall College at Huntington late in November.

Of the two big institutions that to a very large extent monopolize the attention of the disinterested fans of the state, West Virginia gets into action first, its call for the training season being in effect early this week. The Gold and Blue will train at Mount Cateau as last year, but Wesleyan, its strong and only rival in West Virginia, has decided to pass up the training camp proposition this year. Its reason for this, no doubt, is that it has two comparatively easy games at the start of its season with Davis-Ellkins and Muskingum before coming to Washington and Jefferson on October 6. On the other hand West Virginia University starts right off the reel with Pennsylvania University.

The most pertinent happening of the last two weeks, and in some respects, the most important of all the ante-season developments is the announcement of the employment of "Greasy" Neal and John Kellison to coach the Orange and Black warriors. Neal has had one year's experience at Muskingum College as a coach and Kellison has had none, being a graduate of Wesleyan only since last June. Whether or not this will prove to be a handicap or not remains to be seen. On the gridiron these men have both shown qualities of leadership that will be of inestimable value to them in coaching. Neal was captain of one of the best teams Wesleyan ever produced, while Kellison was captain of the 1915 team and for several years has been regarded as one of the most mature judges of football material connected with the game in the state. Their big job, of course, with the excellent material always available at Buckhannon, will be to get the best out of the men there is in them, and to instill into the team some of that fighting spirit that always characterized their own work when they were in the ranks. If the can imbue the men who make up Wesleyan's team with that indomitable spirit with which they fought through many a hard battle, then it will behoove all opponents to be wary. Kellison should produce a line of play that will equalled in previous Wesleyan football teams. Although a powerful man physically, Kellison did not depend on his strength to outplay his opponents, but invariably made use of all the tricks known to the gridiron game and football fans throughout the state may look forward confidently to Kellison producing a set of forwards that will know every knack of playing their respective positions. Hard, aggressive charging, low tackling and ability to use their hands in disposing of their opponents should prove to be characteristic of Wesleyan's linemen under Kellison's tutelage. As an end, "Greasy" Neal's equal has never been seen on a West Virginia field. Unlike many who have established a reputation for end-play, Neal was not altogether just a good man on the offense in receiving forward passes and making long runs with the oval, but he was in addition a ferocious tackler, a dependable man in helping the tackle and in every other particular that goes to make an all-round end, he shone. When a player at Wesleyan he was always consulted by the coaches in regard to matters that affected the team, its play and other details and his advice was seldom overlooked. In this way as well as in his year of experience at Muskingum Neal came very closely in touch with all departments of the game and in no particular should he fail to come up to the standard required of an up-to-date college football coach.

After all has been said, however, it must be conceded by all that Neal and Kellison as a combination are more or less an experiment. All the famous coaches, however, started as "experiments" and there are thousands of followers of the gridiron game in West Virginia who know Neal and Kellison well and who have confidence in their knowledge of the game, personality, ability to handle men and the other factors that go to make the successful gridiron coach, and who believe that they will put the Methodists back in the running this fall.

WESTON MAN IS BADLY HURT IN RAILROAD SHOP

Has Ankle Crushed When Tire for Engine Wheel is Accidentally Dropped.

(SPECIAL TO THE TELEGRAM) WESTON, Sept. 2.—At the Baltimore and Ohio shops several men were putting a tire on an engine wheel and in some manner it slipped and struck William Hudnall on the right ankle, crushing it badly. Dr. J. L. Warder was called and reduced the fracture and he was then removed to his home in North Weston. He will recover without any permanent injury. He has a host of friends here whose sympathy is extended in his misfortune.

Gives Shower. Mrs. E. G. Davison and daughter, Miss Elizabeth, of Crawford, were visiting friends and relatives in the city this week. While here a shower was given by Miss Kate Kline in honor of Miss Davison, whose engagement to Ira Hardman was announced recently at a luncheon given at their country home at Crawford. A number of guests were present at the Kline home and an enjoyable evening was spent with quite a number of beautiful and useful presents being left with the honor guest as souvenirs of the occasion. Refreshments were served.

Advertisers in Session. The Seventh Day Advertisers are in annual session at Beechwood park, Weston, from now until September 10, which time some of the most noted speakers of the day will be present and lecture to their members as well as the general public. They must think well of Weston people, as this is their second state conference here.

Barber Shop Moves. The Central barber shop, John Early, proprietor, has moved from the old plan building on Main street to the Camden hotel building, on Second street. Edelman, the jeweler, will move from the Bland Bailey building into the room vacated by the barber shop.

Arrange for Fair. The committee of the Lewis County Farmers' Association has made the necessary arrangements with the Fair Association and the corn show and other boys' and girls' contests for this year will be held at the county fair, at Benda, above Weston.

Attend Picnic. Quite a number of persons attended the Odd Fellows' picnic at Mountain Lake Park, Md., last Saturday from the many lodges in this county. Many Teachers Attend. The Lewis county teachers' institute which convened last Monday had a record-breaking attendance, there being 215 present. Superintendent Smith, Prof. Yoke and State Superintendent Shawkey, of Charleston, and Prof. G. C. Wilson, of Fairmont, were the principal speakers during the gathering.

Buckhannon Wedding. A very pretty wedding occurred at the home of Judge and Mrs. J. C. McWhorter, at Buckhannon, last Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock when their daughter, Miss Nelle Elizabeth, became the bride of Mr. Matthew Edmiston. The marriage was performed by the Rev. G. W. Pollock, of the Presbyterian church. They left Thursday morning for an auto trip through Virginia. They are both well known to many people in Weston. Quite a number from here attended.

Ask for Bids. The Macpherson Cemetery Association is asking for bids for permanent highways to be constructed in its property just below the city. This cemetery is already beautiful and this improvement will be a great convenience.

Weston Grows. G. B. Ervin has about completed a new store on West Fourth street and will soon be ready to open a modern suburban store. Weston is still growing and will grow even greater when Hughes walks in on March 5.

Isner Returned. The public is glad to learn of the return of the Rev. Mr. Isner to the local Methodist Protestant church. He is a man of worth and always lends a hand to every good cause for the community.

Agency Moved. The Smith Fire Insurance Agency has moved from Main street to Bank street. Ernest Smith, the proprietor, says that anyone looking for property or insurance can find him on "Wall" street. The Keener Gas Company moved its office from East Second street to the room vacated by Mr. Smith.

Goes to Parkersburg. Dabney Pharr, who recently was connected with the firm of Pharr and Hall, left this week for Parkersburg, where he will locate. He has many friends in this city who wish him well in his new location.

Stock Shipped. Nine carloads of stock were shipped from the local stock pens this week, and much worry was experienced by the buyers here on account of the expected strike.

BOIL YOUR LEG OF LAMB IF YOU WANT TO ECONOMIZE

It Will Go Further Than if You Roast It, Says Culinary Expert.

By Mrs. Anna B. Scott.
(Culinary expert of the Philadelphia North American.)

The leg of lamb which cost from $1.25 to $1.40 should make four meals for the average family of four persons; besides, soup for one meal. When boiled and cooled in the stock it will go further than if roasted in oven and takes less fuel.

The lamb and rice are cooked Saturday while getting dinner, so the housekeeper will have no cooking to do Sunday. But where the family want a hot roast dinner, roast the lamb with roasted sweet or white potatoes and escalloped tomatoes, only using the oven.

But, housekeeper, the leg of lamb will not go as far if roasted as when boiled, and one slices it in the kitchen and plans the right amount for each person, and serves it with the rice and carrot salad. There will be enough to slice and prepare with smothered onions for Monday's dinner. If folks do not use smothered onions, make a cream sauce flavored with green peppers and heat the meat in same.

The pickings of the leg which was not boned is used for a meat loaf and will be enough for two meals.

We, as housekeepers, are compelled to plan this way to keep within our table allowance. We also realize that many things are from eight to twelve per cent higher at this time than they were a year ago, some even more than that. Therefore, a close watch is kept on the market and things that are most plentiful are bought, because they are the cheapest.

All recipes are for a family of four, two adults and two children.

All spoon measurements are rounded except when otherwise stated (two level spoonfuls equals one rounding). All questions cheerfully answered if addressed to me in care of the North American.

Sweet Potato Puff with Bacon Flavor.
1 quart medium-sized sweet potatoes.
1-2 teaspoon salt.
Dash white pepper.
2 teaspoons butter.
1 teaspoon chopped parsley.
4 thin slices of bacon.
Wash and boil the sweet potatoes twenty minutes; drain, when cold, skin and put through food chopper. Add salt, pepper, parsley and 1 teaspoon butter and beat until light. Brush pudding pan with butter, fill with the sweet potatoes and bake fifteen minutes. Cover with bacon and bake until crisp. This is very hearty.

Peach Shortcake.
1 cup flour.
1 teaspoon baking powder.
1-4 teaspoon salt.
1 teaspoon shortening.
1-4 cup milk.
2 cups finely sliced or crushed peaches.
1 cup sugar.
Sift flour, baking powder and salt into bowl; add shortening and rub in very lightly with the tips of fingers; add milk enough to hold together. Dust pie tin with flour; pat dough about one inch thick; brush top with milk and bake twenty-five minutes in moderate oven. Split and cover with peaches which have been mixed with sugar; dust top with sugar; serve warm with milk or cream.

Cold Boiled Lamb with Rice and Carrot Border.
The leg of lamb is boiled Saturday and cooled in the stock; also boil and blanch the rice; then on Sunday slice the meat; put in center of platter and put the rice and carrot salad around the edge. Salad is made as follows:
3 cups cold boiled rice.
2 cups cold boiled carrots.
1-2 cup finely chopped green pepper.
1 cup mayonnaise or salad dressing.
1 tablespoon finely chopped parsley.
1 tablespoon grated onion.
1 teaspoon salt.
Cut the carrots in small dice and mix with rice and other ingredients. Mix light and put around the meat. Garnish with thin slices of green pepper and a few thin round slices of carrots. Dust top with paprika. More mayonnaise or dressing can be used if desired.

Banana Ice Cream.
3 ripe bananas.
1 can condensed milk.
1 cup milk.
3-4 cup sugar.
1 tablespoon lemon juice.
A pinch of salt.
Mash the bananas through strainer;

UNWRITTEN LAW TO BE HER PLEA

Slayer of Atlanta Physician at Macon, Ga., Camp is Sure of Acquittal.

MACON, Ga., Sept. 2.—Southern chivalry and the "unwritten law" are relied on by Mrs. H. C. Adams to free her of the charge of murder in the case of Capt. Edgar J. Sprattling, one of the most prominent physicians in Atlanta, whom she shot and killed at the state mobilization camp here.

"He was my family physician and he took advantage of me," said Mrs. Adams in the Bibb county jail.

"I made but one mistake, that was that I did not tell my husband before of what the doctor had done to me. I had gone to Dr. Sprattling for treatment for nervous trouble. He made improper advances to me and seemed to hypnotize me.

Determines to Kill Doctor.
"I told my husband last Friday. He walked the floor like a crazy man. There was only one thing for me to do, and that was to kill this man who had ruined my life. I don't believe any jury will convict me of murder."

Captain Sprattling's fellow officers who were at dinner with him when Mrs. Adams approached and fired at the physician believe that nervous troubles affected Mrs. Adams' mind. Another woman appeared unexpectedly in the murder mystery revolving about the killing of Captain Sprattling.

Another Woman Enters Case.
Mrs. Maud Monk, a trained nurse, who admitted she had been on friendly relations with the doctor for four years, attacked Mrs. Adams' story that Dr. Sprattling first made improper advances to her while she was under treatment for nervous trouble. The "other woman" will aid the prosecution.

Mrs. Adams shot the physician at the state militia camp here "just because of jealousy," Mrs. Monk charged.

"Dr. Sprattling showed me letters from Mrs. Adams in which she threatened to kill him if he didn't bring her to Macon and set her up in an apartment," the nurse said.

Mrs. Adams' husband arrived here from Atlanta, professing confidence that his wife would be set free.

"My wife was thoroughly justified in killing Sprattling after he mistreated her," Adams said, "although I tried to dissuade her when she threatened to kill the doctor. The men and women of the South will be unanimous in their belief that she should go free."

add sugar and lemon juice. Ice freezer, put in the milk; then fruit. Freeze at once. This amount will fill eight ice cream glasses.

Hot-Water Sponge Cake.
1 cup sugar.
1 cup flour.
1-2 cup hot water.
3 eggs—pinch of salt.
1 rounded teaspoon baking powder.
Beat the yolks and sugar together until very light. Add the water and flour and baking powder (which have been sifted together). Fold in the stiffly beaten whites of eggs; line brick pan with paper and bake in very moderate oven forty-five minutes. Dust the top with sugar before taking out of pan. Lemon or vanilla flavoring can be used if desired.

P. S.—Or bake in two layer tin twenty minutes and put together with confectioner's icing or jelly.

BRIDEGROOM

Jumps in River and Rescues Handkerchief His Wife Had Dropped.

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Spectators watching the docking of the Hudson Navigation Company's steamboat Berkshire at Pier thirty-two, North river, were treated to a thrilling rescue. They saw Alfred De Mott, a passenger, leap overboard and save—a sinking handkerchief.

The handkerchief belonged to his day-old bride, but what made it even more valuable was the fact that knotted in one end was a diamond engagement ring. The ring had been too large for her solitary finger, so she had worn it on her handkerchief.

The young woman, who was Miss Underwood, of Albany, was married to De Mott, a druggist of Montreal, at Grace church, Albany, and then they fled from their friends for a honeymoon at Suffolk Downs, L. I.

Coming into the slip Mrs. De Mott waved her handkerchief so enthusiastically at the crowd on the pier that the piece of linen flew from her hand. Mrs. De Mott gave a horrified gasp, but her husband heroically vaulted over the rail and grabbed the handkerchief just as it was going down for the last time. His efforts to keep the handkerchief afloat exhausted him so much that he had to be towed ashore by a boatman.
